Corsicana's Cmdr. Kay Russell's Name Listed Among 140 New Returnees

The long wait of nearly six years seemed to be nearing an end this morning at about 10:35 when Mrs. Charles J. (Gertrude) Russell received "that telephone call" from Dallas saying that her son, Cmdr. Kay Russell, U.S. Navy pilot, is listed among the American Prisoners of War to be returned to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines in the second wave of POW's.

Mrs. Russell, her voice bubbling with relief and delight, told The Daily Sun within minutes that Lt. J.L. Temple of the Dallas Naval Air Station—her "casualty assistance officer"—had just called her to say that Kay's name is "on the list" and she can start making preparations to meet her son, probably sometime next week.

He has been a prisoner of war since May 19, 1967, when his airplane was shot down over South Vietnam. His wife—also named Kay—and two children have been living at Miramar Naval Station near San Diego, Calif., and Mrs. Russell said she will leave sometime next week to greet her son with his family there and his older brother, Charles, a high school math teacher in Andrews, Tex..

Mrs. Russell has not been without communication, it was learned this morning. One of the POW's returning on the first freedom flight, a Navy pilot named Cole Black, brought Mrs. Russsell and her daughter-in-law news that he had seen Cmdr. Russell Feb. 8, before his own release, and that Kay "was in just top, A-one condition...".

No exact release date had been announced at presstime, but Mrs. Russell said it is her understanding that the second group of POW's may start arriving at Clark AFB this weekend.

"I'll tell you, our emotions and hopes have just been like a barometer for the past few days," Mrs. Russell admitted of the time since disagreements in the cease-fire observation committee caused a temporary halt in the release of American POW's and, for one day, an announced halt in American troop withdrawals from Vietnam.

"I'd just been so depressed," Mrs. Russell said, "But then I just said 'No, we've waited too long, and things have got to start looking up...'."

She said everybody has been "just wonderful" about wishing an early return for her son, and she wanted to let Kay's friends and neighbors know, via The Daily Sun, that he is expected home soon.

El Chico Restaurant Coming to Corsicana

Plans for a franchised El Chico restaurant for Corsicana were announced Tuesday by James R. Ruth of Dallas, formerly of Corsicana.

Ruth is president of a newly formed company, Corsicana Food Services, Inc., which has obtained the franchise and will construct the restaurant with the aid of a loan from the Small Business Administration at the intersection of IH 45 and E. Hwy 31.

Contacted at his Dallas home shortly before presstime today, Ruth said he had resigned recently as production manager for the Dallas-based El Chico restaurant chain to organize the new company and put in the new Corsicana eating facility as a franchised operation. He has been production manager for the El Chico chain the past four years and prior to that was associated with Wolf Brand Products, Co. here for 15 years. The family will move back to Corsicana when the new restaurant is ready for opening.

The former Corsicana resident said the restaurant will be located on a site of approximately one acre on the northwest corner of IH 45 and Hwy 31 behind the Gulf Station. It will have approximately 4,200 square feet of space and likely will employ about 14 people, Ruth said. A contractor has not been selected so a starting time is uncertain at this point.

Ruth said although the application for a loan from SBA has been approved, a final figure on the loan won't be known until the facility has been constructed.

A telegram received by The Daily Sun Tuesday from Congressman Olin E. Teague advised that the SBA will insure an insurance policy to the lessor granting the lease of the property in the amount of $164,160 for 180 months, but Ruth said he had not received such a notification and would have to seek clarification of this.

Ed Hamler Will Seek City Post

Ed Hamler, 34, 1107 Bryn Mawr, is the latest candidate to file for the April 3 city election for one of two seats on the City Commission, City Secretary Nelda Neal announced Wednesday afternoon.

The newest candidate is assistant plant manager at Chattanooga Glass Co. and has been a resident of Corsicana since August, 1971.

This brings to four the number of candidates for City Commissioner. At stake are the seats presently held by Commissioners P.D. Fullwood, who is a candidate for re-election to a second term, and Bob Scott, bank vice president, who has filed for the office of mayor contesting Mayor Sue Youngblood in her bid for a second term.

Along with Fullwood, Sam C. McDonald and Robert M. (Bob) Scott, funeral home operator, are candiates for Commission posts. Mortician Scott has served on the Commission once previously.

Mrs. Neal urged prospective candidates for office in the city election to file for places on the ballot with her office by the close of business at 5 p.m. Friday, which had previously been listed as the filing deadline, since City Hall offices are closed Saturdays.

However, she said the actual deadline, by law, is midnight Saturday, March 3, and candidates could file applications with her until that hour "if they can locate me as I will be in and out at home. People would really be taking a chance on catching me in (at home) Saturday," she said, in urging any potential candidate to file by 5 p.m. Friday.

It Won't Be Long, Cmdr. Russell

This same sort of welcoming can be expected for Corsicana's Navy Commander Kay Russell, whose name has shown up on the list of the 140 POW's due home next. (A.P. Wirephoto)

Area Artists Show Work at NJC

Eleven artists from Fairfield and Mexia are exhibiting their work during February at Navarro Junior College.

The women were students in art classes in Mexia and Fairfield taught last fall by Navarro Junior College. Instructor for the courses was James Cross.

Artists represented in the exhibit include Lila Tate, Katherine Steward, Mrs. L. J. Davis, Maxine Story, Agatha Reeves, Frances Emmons, Atoka Smith, Shirley Hullum and Barbara Chavers, all from Fairfield and Floy Little and June Lockhart, both from Mexia.

Industrial Foundation To Rent Farmaster Site to Wicks Corp.

Directors of the Corsicana Industrial Foundation approved Monday a 10-year contract with the Wickes Corp. for the lease-rental of a building occupied by the corporation's Farmaster Division plant, manufacturers of farm gates, on E. Hwy 31.

The contract gives the Wickes Corp. the option to purchase the building and site of 2.749 acres amortizing the $52,139 package at a monthly rental of $618.89.

Action of the board confirmed negotiations which have been conducted by Foundation President Embry Fergusn and the executive committee which had been operating with the board's sanction and a "letter of intent" from Wickes to enter into the lease-purchase arrangement.

Two Industries Due in Teague

TEAGUE--Two new industries are scheduled for Teague in the near future, the Teague Industrial Foundation announced.

Most certain of the two is an industrial sewing room, which will be located in the Teague American Legion building. The Legion hall is being remodeled for the needs of the sewing business, and job applications are now being taken at the Chamber of Commerce office in Teague.

The new business will eventually hire as many as 30 persons, Industrial Foundation Secretary Anthony Ellisor reported.

The other industry considering Teague as a location is a furniture manufacturing plant, which will hire 50 to 100 skilled and unskilled workers.

An agreement with the firm has not been finalized, Ellisor stated, but job applications are being taken at the Commerce office.

To Consider Tax Exemptions, Bonds

The City Commission will consider an ordinance that will give a $3,000 tax exemption to some property owners 65 and older at a special commission meeting Tuesday.

Mayor Sue Youngblood requested at last Tuesday's Commission meeting that the item be placed on the agenda for the special meeting called to hear the second reading of an ordinance authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds.

The first reading of the ordinance issuing the bonds was approved last week after the Commission accepted the bid of First National Bank in Dallas on the sale of the $1,350,000 in General Obligation Bonds.

The Commission will hold a public hearing on the exemption ordinance at the meeting Tuesday, according to an agenda released by City Manager Jack Russell.

Russell and Mayor Youngblood have indicated that the exemption will probably be made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1973 to allow tax payers who qualified to take advantage of the exemption on this year's taxes.

At last Tuesday's meeting Russell recommended the exemption be made effective Jan. 1, 1974 to give the City time to find a way to handle the $30,000 loss in revenue that Russell is expecting the exemptions to cause.

However, Russell admitted Friday the exemptions will probably be made retroactive because of public interest.

Mayor Youngblood pointed out Friday that many persons think everyone 65 or older will be able to qualify to have $3,000 of homestead property exempt from taxation. However, many persons will not be able to qualify for the exemption, she said.

The laws defining a homestead will determine who will qualify for the exemption, City Attorney Don Pevehouse said. Pevehouse said Friday he is in the process of drawing up an ordinance for the meeting Tuesday.

The Texas Municipal League has sent out some sample ordinances, Pevehouse said, which he may consider in writing the ordinance.

Texas Representatives Want Straight Ticket?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Straight ticket voting will still be a part of Texas politics in next year's elections if the mood of a House committee accurately reflects the legislature's intent.

The House Elections Committee sent the bill to a subcommittee, without instructions to report it back within a definite period of time, after rejecting a motion to kill the measure outright.

The Republican—backed bill came in for attack from a powerful Democratic county leader, but gained the support of a government professor.

Straight "ticket voting is easier and faster and you get a better turnout," Bexar County Cleark Jimmy Knight told the panel.

But "straight ticket voting is not intelligent voting," countered Dr. Mitchell Grossman, San Antonio College government professor. Grossman said he is an independent who frequently votes for Republican candidates.

New President, Directors Elected to Navarro Savings

Navarro Savings Association announced Saturday the election of Robert B. (Bob) Sheppard as new president and the election of three new directors who have bought a majority stock interest in the savings and loan firm.

Sheppard has assumed his duties succeeding C. Gary Crow, who resigned as president Feb. 15. Chairman of the Board James McPherson of Dallas resigned with sale of his interest to three Texas investors who have been elected as directors.

The new investor-directors are Carroll Kelly of Freeport, who has been named chairman of the board; Jim Hudson of Austin and Joe Delorenzo of Houston. Kelly is president of the Brazosport Savings and Loan Association; Delorenzo is vice-chairman of the Central National Bank of Houston; and Hudson is owner of Hudson Properties, commercial builders. Hudson is a former University of Texas Longhorn football player and a former member of the professional New York Jets team which played in the Super Bowl.

President Sheppard is a native of Blooming Grove where he began work at the First State Bank in 1941 after graduating from high school. He was with First State Bank from 1941 to 1953 as vice-president and cashier. From there he went to the Bank of the Mainland at LaMarque, Texas, as vice-president until 1964 when he was employed as vice-president and director of the Citizens State Bank at Dickinson, Texas, and still serves as an officer and member of the board there. He and his wife, the former Jimmie Johnson of Emhouse, have been living in Corsicana now for the past two years.

"I am proud to be back with my many friends of this area and invite them to drop by for a visit," President Sheppard said. "We feel like we have purchased a real fine, strong institution and with the help of our Board of Directors and the community we will continue to show a substantial growth."

Speaking for the new ownership group, Board Chairman Kelly added: "President Sheppard and I feel that Corsicana has a tremendous growth potential. It has a record of great economic growth and we are proud to be a part of it.

"We hope to become an even more viable economic part of the community. We have full confidence in the autonomy of Corsicana and feel with aggressive leadership the impact can be felt throughout Corsicana."

There are no other changes in the board or officers of the association, the two new officers said.

Miss 'C' Deadline Extended

The deadline for entries in the 1973 Miss Corsicana Pageant has again been extended to allow more girls to enter the annual contest, according to Jaycee Entries Chairman Ken Dryer.

The deadline was to have been Friday, but Dryer said this deadline has been extended and entries will be received until a new deadline is set. There are "about 13" entries he said during the Friday noon meeting of the Corsicana Jaycees who sponsor the annual pageant.

The pageant will be held the weekend of March 16.

'Survival' Is Word at NCAC

By ROB MECKEL
Sun Staff Writer

Although the word was never used, "survival" was the main item of business Thursday night for the Navarro County Action Committee Board of Directors.

A resolution urging U.S. Congressmen to continue operation of the Office of Economic Opportunity and its programs received unanimous approval by the board, which also voted to re-elect its present officers during this crucial period for Community Action agencies.

William J. McKie was elected to his third consecutive term as chairman of NCAC. The other officers re-elected include P.D. Fulwood, vice-president; the Rev. Paul Curry, second vice-president; Ed Holmes, treasurer; and Mrs. Lena Neal, secretary. One board member said before the vote was taken that this is "no time to change horses in the middle of the stream" (a stream made turbulent since President Nixon's decision to cut off all funds for operation of OEO).

CHAIRMAN MCKIE told the board if OEO is phased out completely, Community Action Agencies will not be able to handle funds channeled into communities for programs funded by the Departments of Housing, Education and Welfare and Labor. The OEO pays administration expenses for NCAC and other CAA's, he said, and it is doubtful that HEW or Labor will be able to pick up the tab for administration expense if the OEO funds are shut off.

programs is cut off, "then you've NCAC Director Jerome Vacek explained that if the administrative arm of CAA eliminated your coordinating mechanism." He said "It will present a problem in many areas if you cannot maintain a sound administrative component and strong board capability."

Vacek said the "target date" for phasing out all OEO programs is Dec. 31, 1973, and personnel from the General Services Administration will be utilized to conduct the phase-out process. He said that in Navarro County, "there are some 5,000 pieces of property (tables, chairs, vehicles, etc.)" which the GSA people will be handling if they go through with the phase-out of OEO.

"Immediate steps must be taken to keep CAA administration intact if we are to continue," Vacek said. He noted that future sources of administrative funds might be sought through federal "revenue sharing" and other programs.

OEO funds are sent to NCAC on a quarterly basis, Vacek said. About 40 per cent was received at the end of the first quarter, and this money will carry the program "until March 15 or 20". He said $175,289 is due from OEO in about mid-March, and another payment is due to arrive in early June.

Vacek said a big question at this time is whether or not OEO will put a "freeze" and, in effect, "impound" money which CAA's are supposed to receive after June 30.

THE UNANIMOUS RESOLUTION concerning the Economic Opportunity Act Extension Bill of 1972 notes that the board of directors of the NCAC: favors the continued operation of OEO and Community Action programs; strongly urges the Congress to assert its role to rescind, repeal or cause to be changed, the actions of the President by initiating its powers as defined by the Constitution of the United States; that Congress is urged to appropriate federal funds as called for in the Economic Act of 1972 for Community Action programs with the proper checks and balances afforded to Congress by requiring the approval of Congress prior to changing or altering of programs and operations or the impoundment of funds.

The resolution also expresses the NCAC board's concern for "other groups—namely, farmers, senior citizens, housing programs, school districts, municipalities, county governments, economic development districts and others affected by the impoundment of their funds or the elimination of their funded programs."

The resolution further states that the NCAC board "awaits with great anticipation and concern a Congressional opinion", and appreciates the concern of Sen. John Tower, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, and U.S. Rep. Olin Teague.

TRA President Says Canal Would Create Major Port Here

BY JOHN BENDER
Sun Staff Writer

KERENS — If the Trinity River Project is approved by voters "the area along Hwy 31 is going to be a main distribution area in Texas," John Scott, president of the Trinity River Authority, told the Kerens Pioneer Literary Club Friday.

"I personally believe you will have one of the main inland ports in America where Hwy. 31 crosses the river," Scott told the gathering of about 50 persons.

Scott, who was not on the Literary Club's program as a speaker, said he was just attending the meeting because "I want to get out to as many of these meetings as I can." Scott, however, did speak several times to answer questions. He was returning to Dallas from another meeting in Henderson County.

The main speaker, Dennis D. Baker, administrative assistant of the Trinity Improvement Association, presented a slide show mostly on the history of the TRA and the benefits of building the barge canal.

SCOTT DID NOT elaborate on prospects of the Hwy. 31 area becoming a main port in the U.S. but mainly explained the method by which the TRA will pay its local share of the cost of building the canal.

"The federal government will advance the cash to buy the land and start the construction," Scott said. "Then each year the TRA will get a bill from the federal government for approximately six per cent of the amount they've spent that year.

"We will then sell the bonds as we need money to pay back the federal government our share of the cost," he said.

When asked why the transporters who will be using the canal should not have to help pay for it, Scott answered, "because it's not done that way on any of the other 25,000 miles of canal in the United States."

"AS FAR AS USE CHARGES go, we would oppose having our canal subjected to use charges as long as the other canals don't have use charges," he said. "This is a federal question and not one we are dealing with in this election."

He said that it is necessary for the entire project—including the barge canal, flood control programs, water supply programs and recreation programs—be done as one project.

"We can get all of these things now for less than the price of local flood control," he said.

"But we cannot ask for federal money for just one group—those interested in flood control, those interested in water supply or those just interested in a barge canal," he said.

Walter Lang, a member of the Kerens City Council, made several attempts to get Scott to answer the question of what impact the project will have on taxation in Kerens.

"Our town has many problems right now that we can't afford to solve: our schools, our sewers, our streets," Lang said. "With as bad a shape as we're in now, we need all the money we can get. Why should we throw a big tax on our people here just to build a canal?" he asked.

"If we stay as we are in Tarrant County where I live," Scott said, "the taxes on my home will have to be increased to pay for all the problems we see ahead.

"If industry moves into this area and adds to the taxable property, it will increase revenue and reduce the load the taxpayers will have to bear," Scott said. "But I can't say this will definitely happen," he added.

★★★ Aunt Louise ★★★

Dear Aunt Louise,

Some people have a green thumb but I see you now have a stiff one! Keep your upper lip to match it and do your finger exercises and you will be surprised what nature can accomplish in a few days. For now, let us reflect on man's two most pleasant occupations--to remember and to dream: to recall the past in his memories and to anticipate the future in his hopes.

When heading for New York in search of MY dream Papa said: "Don't cross the river if you can't swim the tide." In other words, if you can't make a living for yourself get the heck back to Texas where you belong and we will forget the whole thing.

Undeterred and wide-eyed I stormed the citadels of hard, cold Gotham and looked for a job to raise the $6.00 weekly rent for a room adjacent to my newly-wed sister and Travis Johnson, her groom, fresh graduates of Baylor. My door had no lock on it as it was part of the exit to the fire escape so fortunately for me I had no valuables. Valuables? Ha! I was depending on a birthday check from home to repay my sister for a loan she had made me. When I tried to cash the check in a little neighborhood cigar store the proprietor gave me the fish eye and refused to cash it. I was both stunned and furious to learn that a Baptist minister from Texas was suspect in that asaphalt jungle.

Little by little, after getting to Brooklyn by mistake a few times, I learned the new-fangled means of transportation such as the subway, elevated trains and double-decker buses and through the understanding and sympathy of a gentle lady employed by the largest department store in the world I found a job with R.H. Macy. I was to be a model and saleslady doing which ever was required of me but I had not yet learned diplomacy and when one size 20 insisted on squeezing into a siz e 16 I suggested madame resembled a sausage. In New York, in selling dresses, truth is an extravagance no one can enjoy.

After four days of Macy's losing my way with frustrating regularity to the cafeteria and the lady's room, I lost heart and decided to quit while I was ahead. I went out to lunch and never returned and somewhere in the files there is a check for $18 due me.

Luck did not overtake me until I found myself in the elegant office of John Robert Powers Modeling Agency. After my career at the largest department store in the world I could truthfully say I had had "experience" and he signed me up. Delightedly I told my sister and we posed as twins for I had overheard Gloria Vanderbuilt andher twin Thelma Furness calling the agency forjust such a combination for a gala they were staging for some dignitaries.

Due to lack of competition we were a hit and were launched as the Johnson twins, Johnson being the bridegroom's name. I did not mind what they called me as long as they DID and work came in from all sides. Margaret got a job as Bob Hope's Honeychile on the radio and I made a movie in Panama.

The reaction back home was something less than enthusiastic for my mother was despondent with fear and Papa was worried about Satan and posing for beer and cigarette ads. We assured him we would be choosey, which we were, and for a brief hiatus started on the music route. Travis won a contest with his magnificent tenor voice and the three of us teamed up with three more singers and got a job on N.B.C. We were hired to make an unostentatious background for the star, Lucy Monroe, who was famous for her rendition of The Star Spangled Banner which she sang at the opening of almost anything. On our first night when my sister and I saw that live, captive audience out front in the huge Studio A of Radio City we got carried away and gave it our own brand of everything we had. In the excitement I stepped on Lucy's orange chiffon train and in so doing called attention to our little group. Bob Goldstein, talent scout for Twentieth Century, saw the "twins" and loped to the dressing room for an introduction. He was small of stature and when he encountered us in our full height he looked up with a distressed expression and explained that any leading man in the studio stable at Twentieth Century would have touse a ladder to play hero to us. So much for Hollywood. Disappointments? At least one a day but experiences that can not be erased by time. Once while walking down the runway at the Ritz I was leading a beautiful white Afghan canine to dramatize the elegance of a long white furry cape I was wearing. We both did well for a few minutes until doggie spotted his master in the audience and made a wild lunge for him, dragging me in an undignified trot the full length of the place.

Modeling and music occupied our waking moments while we waited for the BIG BREAK. Actually the break had already come, was present every day of our lives for we were happly healthy, and hopefule.

Bread and butter money came from posing for Sears and Roebuck catalogues. They usually posed the models 4 or 5 in a row, smiling sweetly at each other trying to look expensive and desirable. My sister and I tried never to touch hands so little girls who cut us out for paper dolls wouldn't have to sacrifice the fingers. I recall so many of my own in our childhood were altogether without hands because the models before us were posed so close together.

For the Stylish Stout section they stuffed us front and back with yards of cotton and, once dressed, we were cautioned not to move lest the whole padding collapse and would have to be reconstructed. As we were paid by the hour, time was of the essence!

We posed in shrouds, did testimonials for cough syrup, recommended many kinds of pot cleaners and itching powder and did just about any decent job we could find.

Marriage for me and a baby boy for my sister altered the picture a bit but never our enthusiasm. The Johnsons formed the famous "Song Spinners!" singing group and I continued the modeling, improving my clientele with experience

If any youngsters ask my advice, and I doubt if they will, I would say that although the world is changing, not to forget that nard work is still the main ingredient in any line of endeavor and I might suggest they read and digest Joshua I: and hang in there!

Virgil Shelton who is our Photocomp Foreman brought a large batch of Potato Chip cookies to work that his wife had baked. I had never heard of them and was anxious to try one. I didn't stop at ONE....they were so good I ate my share. I asked Virgil to ask his wife for the recipe to share with you readers.

Dear Aunt Louise: "Thank you for such a nice compliment on my Potato Chip Cookies. I want to share the recipe with your readers. Therefore, as requested:

POTATO CHIP COOKIES

2 cups sifted flour
1 cup sugar
2 sticks Oleo (softened)
1 - 10 cent bag potato chips, crushed
1 cup chopped pecans
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix all ingredients well, roll into walnut size balls. Flatten with bottom of sugar-coated tumbler. Bake in pre-heated oven 350 degrees for approximately 5 minutes. Allow to cool before taking from cookie sheet. Enjoy."

(Signed: Rio Shelton)

DEAR AUNT LOUISE:

"As one who comes back to the old home town from time to time, I would like to tell you how much I enjoy reading your column in The Corsicana Daily Sun. I would like to say hello to all my former classmates who were with me at C.H.S. during the years 1939 til 1943. Also I would like to send fondest regards to all the teachers who tried with much patience to instill some knowledge into us. I would like to say to them all, thanks for the wonderful memories.

"I wrote this poem about our little planet. I would like to share it with your readers.

OUR BEAUTIFUL EARTH

To look back as our spacemen do;
To see our lovely Earth as it floats and shimmers in a void of blue;
What a thrilling sight that must be!
Not many people can ever that way really see;
That which means so much to you and me.
So round and beautiful it would seem,
Where so many people have lived and dreamed.
If it is our fate that we must here live and dwell.
We must not make of a Earth a living hell.
Many evil men have lived and dreamed
Of hateful, horrible, dreadful schemes.
But perhaps Love and Kindness will survive,
And from all this mankind can devise
A plan with which humanity can become very wise,
Where gentleness and devotion will fill their lives.
When there will be no more wars, want or strife,
Perhaps humanity can then live a better life.
For all this we will hope and pray.
With the help of God it can become true on some beautiful future day.

Yours Sincerely,

Students To Sponsor Dance

ENNIS—The sophomore class of Ennis High School is sponsoring a dance at KJT Hall on March 9 from 8 to 12 p.m..

The dance is for all junior high, high school and college students, with admission $1.75 single and $2.75 per couple. There will be no hair restrictions, but the Ennis School dress code is to be followed.

M. Sgt. Hollwingsworth Retires

Sergeant Hollingsworth was decorated for meritorious service as a missile electronic systems superintendent with the 2nd Bomb Wing at Barksdale.

The sergeant, a 22-year veteran, is a 1950 graduate of Corsicana High School. His wife is the former Billie J. Layfield.

Sergeant and Mrs. Layfield have two children, Glenn and Gerry.

Flores Survives Ft. Polk

Army Private Manuel G. Flores Jr., 20, whose parents live at 703 W. Fourth Ave., Corsicana, recently completed eight weeks of basic training at Ft. Polk, La.

He is a 1970 graduate of Corsicana High School.

His wife, Billie, lives in Rice.

Historical Committee Furthers Plans for Museum, Playhouse

BY JIM BUSH
Golden Circle Reporter

The Navarro County Historical Survey Committee met yesterday for a noon luncheon at the Holiday Inn to further plans for a museum in Navarro County and an amphitheater in Jester Park where the Committee hopes to hold a 1976 pageant in celebration of America's 200th birthday.

Arthur Patrick agreed to serve as president of a committee to work toward the museum and theater. Members of the committee include Sue Cook, vice-president; Judy Saunders, secretary; and George Eliot, treasurer.

Patrick agreed to check a number of buildings in Corsicana which were suggested for a museum. To be considered are the old Navarro Clinic, the Corsicana (Shell) Clinic, the old Methodist Church on 15th, the County Jail, and the Sam Houston School. The possibility of a new building—perhaps in Jester Park next to Pioneer Village—was also discussed.

The Committee is now hoping to incorporate a community playhouse into plans for a museum, and Tom White was present at the meeting to list specifications needed for a theater.

The Committee agreed that any building to be used as a museum would need to be fireproofed and offer security and ample parking, numerous display rooms, plus a large open room for the theater.

Possibilities for the museum and pageant will be discussed further at the Historical Committee's next meeting on April 2, when more facts and figures are available.

After the planning meeting, the Historical Committee agreed to endorse the Trinity River Project at the request of Blake Gillen.

Dr. Heather Wins Public Health Award

A former Navarro Countian, Dr. Carl D. Heather of Austin, the son of Mrs. Carl (Fay) Heather, Sr. of Rice, was recently designated the principal recipient of the annual $500 Bryant Memorial Award for outstanding contributions to public health.

Dr. Heather and his three teammates were named winners at the awards dinner of the Texas Public Health Association held last Friday in Dallas. He is in the research department of the State Department of Health. His teammates are Dr. Reuben D. Wendt, Houston, Joseph Murphy, Jr., and Spyros P. Pappas.

According to a news stry his mother received about the award, the team was cited for development of a transport medium for the gonococcus, which now makes it possible for physicians in remote areas to obtain an accurate diagnosis of gonorrhea in their patients.

Hubbard Pugilists

Curtis Ellison, left, and Otis (Nate) Henry—members of a Hubbard boxing team coached and managed by Max Ellison—left this morning for Fort Worth where they have high hopes of winning a first place trophy in the open state tournament. Max explained that the boys will be representing Temple at the match because that is the team they beat in a regional tournament. The Temple team will pay expenses to Fort Worth, including a place to stay, food, trunks and jackets. (Sun Staff Photo by Jim Bush)

Ennis Says No To New School

ENNIS — Ennis and Bardwell voters gave a definite "no" yesterday to the question of whether to build a new $2.7 million school.

Superintendent Lonnie Renfro said Proposition I, which would provide for levying a school maintenance tax, failed by a total vote of 1977 to 1342. Proposition II, which would provide for issuance of $2.7 million in bonds for building a new school, failed by a vote of 1960 to 1353.

Renfro said of the bond defeat, "We're not vindictive about it at all. We asked the people to give us a plurality vote, and they certainly did."

"We sure have problems up here," Renfro said, but "we're going to do the best with what we've got."

The election held yesterday was the second attempt to provide funding of a new Ennis school. It was called to get a firmer answer from citizens who defeated the bond on Feb. 7 by a margin of just one vote.

Commissioners Adopt Rules For County Land Development

Most important order of business Thursday for Navarro County Commission Court was the adoption of a number of amendments providing rules for the development of lands lying outside of incorporated cities and towns of the county.

The amendments provide regulations for drawing and submitting plats, planning roads, utilities and a number of other general regulations.

Commissioners voted to consider a request from Sheriff Jerry Shelton for law enforcement equipment at a total cost of $1,867.85 for items including electronic sirens for cars of the department, mounts, adapter cables, speakers, misrophones, seven tape recorders ad seven Polaroid cameras.

The Commissioners agreed to take action on Sheriff Shelton's request at their March 12 meeting.

In other business, the Commissioners voted to inspect the county jail at 1 p.m. Thursday to determine if quarters there are overcrowded.

Strauss Looks For Party Unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert S. Strauss, the fast-talking Texan who heads the Democratic National Committee, has spent most of the past two months trying to get Democrats of different shades under the same umbrella—and talking to one another.

"It doesn't do any good to get under the umbrella unless you communicate once you get there," he said in an interview at his Watergate office. "If you're going to knee and elbow and kick when you're under the umbrella, then you're better off not under it."

In a recent two-day stretch, Strauss had dinner with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, an early morning meeting with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, an evening meeting with Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota plus sessions with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Kentucky Gov. Wendell Ford.

"That in itself," Strauss said, "is the story of what's happening in the Democratic party."

Another part of the story is the resistance of what Strauss calls "a small, hard-core group" of critics who oppose his chairmanship.

Strauss said he isn't going to worry about them.

His next step is to announce this week a party advisory council, expected to have on it the likes of Daley, Wallace, Mondale, Kennedy and Ford, plus the George McGoverns, Hubert H. Humphreys, Edmund S. Muskies and Shirley Chisholms.

Wooing elected Democrats, many of whom felt they were left out of party activities in 1972 as the youthful legions of Sen. George McGovern swept to control and, ultimately, electoral disaster, has been a major Strauss goal.

Other steps the 51-year-old chairman has taken include:

—An effort to improve relations among the national committee, Democratic governors and the party's leaders in Congress. He's planning to hire a full-time liaison man to work with them.

—Signing on a national committee staff of people from all wings of the party. Strauss named Mary Lou Burg, who supported Eugene J. McCarthy for president in 1968, as his deputy. He picked Bob Keefe, a former aide to Sen. Birch Bayh and a key AFL-CIO operative in the fight that led to Strauss' election as chairman, to be political director.

—Reorganization of fund-raising activities with Joseph Cole, a Cleveland industrialist and presidential backer of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, as full-time national finance chairman. Peter McColough, a Xerox Corp. executive who helped Strauss raise money for 1972 congressional candidates, is party treasurer.

—Creation of a new, "really meaningful research operation," one that would use computers to provide Democratic candidates with information on issues and the records of their opponents.

—A courtship of the leaders of organized labor who stayed neutral or helped President Nixon in the 1972 campaign. A day after Nixon met last week with AFL-CIO leaders in Miami Beach, Strauss was there.

Predictably, the major opposition to Strauss, a graduate of the Lyndon B. Johnson-John Connally school of Texas Democratic politics, has come from the hard-core McGovern supporters, who fear Strauss will destroy the reforms that were enacted a year ago.

"There are those who think that we need monitoring up here and they're monitoring us," Strauss said.

"There are a small hard-core group that are never going to be satisfied by Bob Strauss and that's their business. I wouldn't be satisfied with them.

"But, you know, I learned a long time ago that you do what you think is right. And you don't worry about people like that."

FOREIGN AID?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting to beat a midnight deadline, Congress today was expected to extend until June 30 present spending levels for foreign aid and the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

The spending resolution now in effect, extended four times already, expires at midnight tonight. It supplants a twice-vetoed regular appropriation bill for the two departments, and a foreign-aid money bill that failed last year because Congress couldn't agree on a new foreign-aid authorization bill.

Bush Wants GOP Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — As head man in a party that carried 49 states in the presidential election but remained a congressional minority for the 10th straight time, Republican National Chairman George Bush has an obvious goal: GOP command of Congress after 1974.

In the month since he took over the GOP chairmanship, the handsome, 48-year-old New Englander-turned-Texan has moved to make that his committee's majority activity, with the congressional races the principal focus for the next 21 months.

"The President, I think we'll all concede, did remarkably well and got votes from people who had never voted Republican before," Bush said in an interview.

"Now, our job is to see that some of those people that never voted Republican before they voted for Nixon will vote for other Republicans," he said.

Bush was picked for his job by Nixon in the wake of controversy over the way the President conducted the 1972 campaign. Bush moved from the United Nations ambassadorship to replace Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., who was one of those complaining that the White House concentrated on the Nixon campaign to the neglect of other GOP candidates.

"Well, we can't relive the past," Bush said. "Now the President's interests and the party's interests directly coincide. He needs more Republicans in the House and more Republicans in the Senate."

To this end, Bush has moved to reorganize the party's political arm by:

—Balancing differing ideological viewpoints by naming Harry Dent, a South Carolina conservative, as party counsel; Rep. William Steiger, a Wisconsin moderate, as head of a commission on convention delegate selection rules; Janet Johnston, a California political ally of Gov. Ronald Reagan, as deputy chairman; and W. Pat Wilson, a Nashville investment banker representing the emerging Southern wing, as party finance chairman.

—Combining the party's fund-raising and spending operations under Wilson, who reports directly to him. This is an important part of Bush's effort to get financial aid to Republican candidates who need it.

—Promising to do what he can to provide additional financial support for the GOP governors, who have been particularly hard hit in the last two political years and are crying for help.

A major theater of operations will be the House and Senate Republican Campaign Committees.

Whatever differences other Republicans might have had with Nixon strategists last year, Bush says they are in harmony now.

"Some say President Nixon is not interested in politics any more....That just couldn't be further from the truth," Bush added.

Acknowledging that the party has diverse elements that may be feuding by 1976, Bush says he will keep the GOP machinery neutral.

"I don't want it to appear that there's a bias toward a philosophy," Bush said. "The President puts a strong imprint on the party and out of this imprint there will be major positions taken, and they will be defended and articulated by me and others here.

"But beyond that we're not going to try to divide the party by defining narrowly what a good Republican is, because a good Republican in New York might have a certain different slant on things than a good Republican in Texas or in Wisconsin or in California..."We're going to stay out of the presidential thing in '76," Bush added. "And if a man is appointed to party office from a state and there happens to be a potential presidential candidate from that state, I want it run so fairly that nobody's going to be able to conclude. "Ah, this proves the committee is going to be for Jones or Smith,' because it's not going to be."

Bush concedes that winning control of either house of Congress in 1974 is not going to be easy. He said both he and Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss, a fellow Texan, have their work cut out for them.

"I've got more difficulty than Strauss in the sense that we're dealing with smaller numbers of registered Republicans across the country," Bush said. "He's got an advantage on that. I've got an advantage because I think the presidency under Richard Nixon is a plus factor for the party."

There's a wonderful family of products at Safeway we think you should know: Lucerne, Bel-air and Town House, for example. There are many members of this family and they all wear the famous Safeway Brand on their labels. This label tells you it's a Safeway Brand and that it's made for or by Safeway under rigid quality specifications. This private label also tells you it's a money-saving brand. We sell it for less because it costs us less. Just another way to save at Safeway.

Zoning Commission Recommends Denying, Modifying Zone Changes

By BETTY JEAN CLAY
City Editor

The City Planning and Zoning Commission, after holding public hearings on three applications for zoning changes which all met resistance from neighboring owners Thursday, will recommend to the City Commission denial of one and modifications of the other two.

The P&Z voted to recommend that the City deny the application of R. C. Mallard for a change from Residential 3 to Commercial zoning on 1207 N. Beaton Street (Lot G, Block 257) and that he continue his truck line operations as a non-conforming use.

Municipal Service Director Delma Ware said this property had been used at least 15 years for commercial purposes and Mallard had been operating a non-conforming trucking firm there for some time.

THE MUNICIPAL SERVICES DIRECTOR told the P&Z members that if Mallard were to be given Commercial zoning he would continue the same operation, and if he were denied the change in zoning he could continue operating as a non-conforming business in existence before zoning was adopted, but could not expand it.

Three neighboring women objected to the zoning being changed, more than the trucking business itself. Mrs. John Remonte said even before the property was a part of the city they had land where the truck firm is and put in the first buildings, and her husband still had a business plant behind their home, which is next door.

The trucking firm is noisy, but she conceded so is all of Beaton street with its other local businesses.

"What we fear is what would happen if Mallard sold his property and it had Commercial zoning," Mrs. Remonte said drawing endorsement from Mrs. Ben Aldama and Mrs. D. T. Gonzales who didn't think Commercial zoning would be "in the best interest" of those with homes in the area.

In objecting, Mrs. Remonte commented that Mallard had two storage tanks at the rear of his property, for gasoline and keresene, which she had complained about as a hazard to a former city manager but nothing had been done about it. She also reported that when Mallard built up his lot filling up low spots on his property it has stopped up natural drainage that had caused them expense in coping with a drainage condition.

A PROPOSAL by Hugh Stroube to put in a new type of rental storage facility known as "mini-warehouses" brought forth recommendations from the board that the City revise its zoning ordinance to classify mini-warehouses as a new type of local retail business.

Erwin-Beasley Co., which has given Stroube option to buy the land if a zoning change is granted, made application for Commercial zoning on a large irregular shaped lot in the 300 block of S. 38th Street (Lot C-3, Block 801) now zoned Multi-Family-1.

Stroube said he wanted to put in a storage building approximately 30 feet wide by 120 feet long which would be compartmentalized into multiple storage units for use by tenants who want to rent space to store excess furniture, household goods, odds and ends for short term periods.

Bob McCormick, 304 S. 38th St., registered objections for himself and two of his neighbors. "We are trying to keep our area residential and we are trying to upgrade, not downgrade," he said in noting their homes faced across the street looking toward where the warehouse is proposed.

Mrs. Ernest Linex, 308 S. 38th St., also objecting, reported she is rebuilding her burned-out home and when she started the renovation she had no idea a commercial use was proposed on the vacant land opposite her.

Member Joe York offered a motion that the P&Z recommend to the City Commission that the zoning ordinance be revised to stipulate that mini-warehouses can be built in General Retail districts by specific use permit and if the City agrees to this revision, it further be the P&Z recommendation that the City Commission grant General Retail zoning change and specific use permit to Stroube-Erwin-Beasley for mini-warehouses.

THE P&Z VOTED to recommend that Kenneth M. Wylie be granted General Retail zoning on half the 300-by-300-square-foot block of property at 203 Hardy Avenue he sought rezoned for construction of a combination plumbing shop office and warehouse, after he has sub-divided the property and replatted it. Co-owner Ron Wylie submitted a petition with signatures of about 10 neighbors owners who he said had no objections.

Kindergarten Parents Meeting Scheduled

Plans are being made to register all children in the Corsicana Independent School District who will be five (5) years old on or before September 1, 1973.

A meeting of parents will be held simultaneously at each elementary school on Monday evening, March 12 at 7:00 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting is twofold. A survey of all prospective kindergarten pupils will be made in order to ascertain where classes for the 5-year-old should be located. Also, school officials will explain the public school kindergarten program to all parents.

Those who do not attend the meeting should go by one of the schools or the administration building, 312 West First Avenue, to complete a registration card.
